

Dear Senator Fischer,

As a proud member-owner of MembersOwn Credit Union, I am writing to urge you to oppose any efforts to impose new taxes on not-for-profit credit unions.

Credit unions like mine exist to serve members, not to maximize profits. Unlike banks, credit unions reinvest earnings into better rates, lower fees, and more personalized service for people like me and over 140 million Americans who choose credit unions as their financial partner.

If Congress removes the federal tax exemption for credit unions, that cost will fall on me—as a working person, a saver, and a borrower.

Please do not let Wall Street lobbyists succeed in weakening credit unions just to boost bank profits. A new tax would:

- Raise my loan interest rates
- Lower the return on my savings
- Increase the cost of basic financial services

That's not just a tax on credit unions. It's a tax on me.

For 90 years, Congress has recognized credit unions' vital role in providing affordable, community-centered financial services. I hope you will continue to support that mission by protecting the credit union tax status.

Thank you for your time and your service. I respectfully urge you to stand with credit union members and tell your colleagues: Don't Tax My Credit Union.

Sincerely,

Full Name

Street Address

City, State, ZIP

Dear Senator Ricketts,

As a proud member-owner of MembersOwn Credit Union, I am writing to urge you to oppose any efforts to impose new taxes on not-for-profit credit unions.

Credit unions like mine exist to serve members, not to maximize profits. Unlike banks, credit unions reinvest earnings into better rates, lower fees, and more personalized service for people like me and over 140 million Americans who choose credit unions as their financial partner.

If Congress removes the federal tax exemption for credit unions, that cost will fall on me—as a working person, a saver, and a borrower.

Please do not let Wall Street lobbyists succeed in weakening credit unions just to boost bank profits. A new tax would:

- Raise my loan interest rates
- Lower the return on my savings
- Increase the cost of basic financial services

That's not just a tax on credit unions. It's a tax on me.

For 90 years, Congress has recognized credit unions' vital role in providing affordable, community-centered financial services. I hope you will continue to support that mission by protecting the credit union tax status.

Thank you for your time and your service. I respectfully urge you to stand with credit union members and tell your colleagues: Don't Tax My Credit Union.

Sincerely,

Full Name

Street Address

City, State, ZIP

Dear Representative Smith,

As a proud member-owner of MembersOwn Credit Union, I am writing to urge you to oppose any efforts to impose new taxes on not-for-profit credit unions.

Credit unions like mine exist to serve members, not to maximize profits. Unlike banks, credit unions reinvest earnings into better rates, lower fees, and more personalized service for people like me and over 140 million Americans who choose credit unions as their financial partner.

If Congress removes the federal tax exemption for credit unions, that cost will fall on me—as a working person, a saver, and a borrower.

Please do not let Wall Street lobbyists succeed in weakening credit unions just to boost bank profits. A new tax would:

- Raise my loan interest rates
- Lower the return on my savings
- Increase the cost of basic financial services

That's not just a tax on credit unions. It's a tax on me.

For 90 years, Congress has recognized credit unions' vital role in providing affordable, community-centered financial services. I hope you will continue to support that mission by protecting the credit union tax status.

Thank you for your time and your service. I respectfully urge you to stand with credit union members and tell your colleagues: Don't Tax My Credit Union.

Sincerely,

Full Name

Street Address

City, State, ZIP

Dear Representative Flood,

As a proud member-owner of MembersOwn Credit Union, I am writing to urge you to oppose any efforts to impose new taxes on not-for-profit credit unions.

Credit unions like mine exist to serve members, not to maximize profits. Unlike banks, credit unions reinvest earnings into better rates, lower fees, and more personalized service for people like me and over 140 million Americans who choose credit unions as their financial partner.

If Congress removes the federal tax exemption for credit unions, that cost will fall on me—as a working person, a saver, and a borrower.

Please do not let Wall Street lobbyists succeed in weakening credit unions just to boost bank profits. A new tax would:

- Raise my loan interest rates
- Lower the return on my savings
- Increase the cost of basic financial services

That's not just a tax on credit unions. It's a tax on me.

For 90 years, Congress has recognized credit unions' vital role in providing affordable, community-centered financial services. I hope you will continue to support that mission by protecting the credit union tax status.

Thank you for your time and your service. I respectfully urge you to stand with credit union members and tell your colleagues: Don't Tax My Credit Union.

Sincerely,

Full Name

Street Address

City, State, ZIP

Dear Representative Bacon,

As a proud member-owner of MembersOwn Credit Union, I am writing to urge you to oppose any efforts to impose new taxes on not-for-profit credit unions.

Credit unions like mine exist to serve members, not to maximize profits. Unlike banks, credit unions reinvest earnings into better rates, lower fees, and more personalized service for people like me and over 140 million Americans who choose credit unions as their financial partner.

If Congress removes the federal tax exemption for credit unions, that cost will fall on me—as a working person, a saver, and a borrower.

Please do not let Wall Street lobbyists succeed in weakening credit unions just to boost bank profits. A new tax would:

- Raise my loan interest rates
- Lower the return on my savings
- Increase the cost of basic financial services

That's not just a tax on credit unions. It's a tax on me.

For 90 years, Congress has recognized credit unions' vital role in providing affordable, community-centered financial services. I hope you will continue to support that mission by protecting the credit union tax status.

Thank you for your time and your service. I respectfully urge you to stand with credit union members and tell your colleagues: Don't Tax My Credit Union.

Sincerely,

Full Name

Street Address

City, State, ZIP